into Indigenous Cinema

Indigenous storytellers are sacred knowledge-keepers who have shaped and bound communities together through the spoken word. Today, Indigenous stories and storytelling live on – remembering, sustaining but also disrupting, subverting and constantly challenging the voice of colonialism. Film makers, NATiVe advisors and invited guests will explore the journey from oral tradition to the big screen.

Participants:

Concepción Suárez Aguilar (Director „Koltavanej“)

Sebastián Lingiardi (Director „Sip’ohi - El lugar del Manduré“),

Åsa Simma (Dramaturgist and Script Development, International Sami Film Institute)

Ingrid Kummels (Anthropologist, Freie Universität Berlin)

Moderation: Jason Ryle (Executive Director, imagineNATiVe Film and Media Arts Festival, Toronto)
